

Foodwise is funded by the London Development Agency and European Regional Development Fund and delivered in association with Business Link for London. Our aim is to support London's food industry by creating business opportunities, providing practical assistance and safeguarding sustainable employment across the Capital.

FW/DM/098

London Food Fair 2004

In support of the Capital's food and drink industry you are invited to spend the day sampling some of the many culinary delights that London offers and participate in a series of practical masterclasses designed to delight and inspire your taste buds further.

11am – Paul Rankin

Ireland's biggest celebrity chef

12pm – Patisserie Risque

Producer of delicious biscuits in all sorts of cutting-edge styles

1pm – Skelligs

Explore the intricacies of these delightful handmade chocolates, masterclass and tasting

2pm – Paul Gayler

The Lanesborough's executive chef shares the secrets of his unique style

3pm – Innocent Drinks

The success story behind one of this decades fastest growing brands

4pm – Robert Wollheim

A lesson in the subtle art of wine tasting to round off the day

You can attend any of the masterclasses on the day. To book your FREE place at the exhibition call us on 0845 60 23 709 or visit www.businesslink4london.com

London Food Fair 2004

London Food Fair 2004

Old Spitalfields Market
Liverpool Street, London EC1

Wednesday 16 June

11.00am – 5.00pm

The exhibition will be divided into five regions, providing a truly global marketplace for you to explore.

Feel intoxicated by the spicy aromas of Africa, experience the Caribbean and all its flavours, heat up and cool down in South Asia, tour Europe in an afternoon, sample some Eastern cuisine and feel inspired by the range of food and drink that London offers.

